Prior to relocating to New Delhi for 2 years to set up the Indian property development arm of a UK company my wife and I attended two courses run by Laxmi Chaudhry. The courses were titled "Living in India" and "Doing Business in India".

We found Laxmi's courses to be immensely comprehensive, informative and fun. She provided a considerable amount of relevant information (through dialogue and the course materials) in a short space of time on a diverse range of topics including: history, religion, economics, culture, relationships, trust, business etiquette, socialising, festivals, customs and poverty.

Even now after 6 months of living in Delhi, we still find ourselves in situations where the information we learned from Laxmi comes in use – both in business and when out with our new Indian friends. Furthermore, Laxmi is always at the other end of a telephone or email to answer those embarrassing questions we don't dare ask anyone in India!

We would have no hesitation in recommending Laxmi to anyone wishing to learn more about India –whether it's because they are relocating to India, carrying out business with Indians (anywhere in the world) or just for general interest.

To summarise:

1. Laxmi's course accelerated the speed at which we have settled in India
2. It's the perfect opportunity to ask all those embarrassing questions
3. The course is a must for anyone considering relocating to India!
